Initially the game begins on Crazy Time with the player facing the game wheel and then choosing from the eight possibilities where they would like to place their bet. Stakes range from £0.10 to £1000, so regardless of the size of your bankroll, there will be a bet available for you to play at that is comparable to your balance. Multiple bets can be placed on the various outcomes that can land on the wheel which are as follows. Number 1: (20 positions on the wheel) Number 2: (14 positions on the wheel) Number 5: (7 positions on the wheel) Number 10: (4 positions on the wheel) Coin Flip (4 positions on the wheel) Pachinko (2 positions on the wheel) Cash Hunt (2 positions on the wheel) Crazy Time (1 position on the wheel) Once all of the bets have been placed then the wheel will begin to spin. A few factors set Crazy Time apart from the previous wheel based casino games that have come before it. Whilst the wheel is spinning an additional multiplier will come in to play. This multiplier will stop at a random amount of up to 50x, and one of the 8 possible outcomes from the wheel. The multiplier will then be applied to that final result. After the enhanced win or bonus round multiplier has been determined, the wheel will then slow down and stop. The flapper that is positioned at the top of the wheel key in deciding what the final winning outcome is. What does Crazy Time Payout? The payouts you can receive from the wheel on Crazy Time are fairly straightforward to work out. The numbers on the wheel will pay as much as their value, so landing on the number 2 would be a 2:1 payout, whilst landing on the number 10 will see a reward of 10:1 paid out. The Crazy Time bonus rounds carry their own impressive odds. Coin Flip has a maximum return of 500:1 whilst Cash Hunt boasts an impressive 500:1 return. Pachinko and Crazy Time have the potential reach huge odds if doubles are continually hit. Pachinko carries odds of 10,000:1 max, whilst Crazy time is maxed out at 20,000x. If the multiplier has been applied to the outcome that you have bet on, then your stake will first be multiplied by that amount. We have put together a list of odds to help you understand the potential win odds when you land on each part of the Crazy Time wheel. Шансы на победу в Crazy Time. With you literally having a 50/50 chance of winning either amount, the coin flip game can have you dancing in delight as you hit the big multiplier, or give you that classic head in hands moment as you contemplate on what could have been. Our captivating host will now take centre stage as they are charged with releasing the puck down the giant Pachinko game, from a position that is indicated by a light that will stop randomly over one of the drop zones. Anticipation begins to build as the puck makes its way toward the landing zones that are populated with multipliers and doubles, bouncing from each peg as it does so. If the puck comes to rest in one of the multiplier landing zones then your stake will be multiplied by that amount. The ideal situation though is for the puck to land in a zone marked double, this will cause all multiplier values to double and the puck will be released again. Once you have selected your target and pulled the trigger your prize will be revealed. You will also get to see what are behind the other targets as a tease, and a look of what you could have won scenario. <https://youtu.be/xDH8NRld-g>.
